City refuses slough rescue

By Bob Slate
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — A proposed subdivision in Dobrey Slough met with another defeat Tuesday night, when the City Council supported the Plan Commission's rejection of the plan.

Ramm Development had gone ahead with some of the work on the proposed residential subdivision even though the commission recommended against it at a hearing Nov. 8. Steve Lathrop of Granite City, one of the developers, said he hoped the City Council would override the decision.

Lathrop had proposed digging a two-acre lake, 15 feet deep, to improve drainage. Homes were to be built around the lake. The proposed development includes building within the city, which annexed part of the property in October, and outside the city, within Madison County jurisdiction. The property is on the northeast side of Granite.

There has been a moratorium on building in the slough area since May 1973.

Under provisions of the moratorium, enacted by the Madison County Board at the direction of the Illinois Division of Waterways, persons found guilty of violating the moratorium risk daily fines of $5,000 to $10,000.

Lathrop contends the moratorium does not apply to a home-rule municipality like Granite City.

Alderman Jeff Worthen, chairman of the council's Planning and Zoning Committee, expressed concern Tuesday evening about the possibility of jeopardizing federal- and state grants that have been promised to this area for pumps and drainage work.

He said, "No one can legally impede the flow of drainage of storm water ... but nobody is sure whether or not Lathrop is doing that. The engineers have not rendered a decision."

Lathrop has been digging a lake on the property within the city, without a permit, for the past week, officials said.

By Tuesday morning he had dug a hole 15 feet deep and approximately 150 feet long.

When asked if the city planned to take action against Lathrop for building without a permit, Mayor Von Dee Cruse said, "I think that is a matter for our attorney."

City Attorney Mark Goldenberg said he was unaware that Lathrop was currently digging a lake on the property, but said he was unsure if any legal action could be taken.

Goldenberg said, "A person can cut down a tree in his yard, and he does not need a permit. He can dig a hole in his yard without a permit. Now, how big a hole he can dig is the question. Where is the line drawn?"

The city attorney said he would "look into the matter."

Lathrop says the lake will enhance drainage in the area, by providing "millions of gallons of storage."

He said he presented his plan in its early stages to Walter "Shang" Greathouse, executive director of the Metro East Sanitary District, and to the county's Land Use Committee.

Lathrop said "Greathouse agreed that it would hold storm water, and that we needed it, but that it really wasn't up to him."

He said county officials "originally liked the idea, and told me to go ahead and check out the engineering and get more details."

But when county officials learned of the moratorium, according to Lathrop, they backed off "because it is a politically hot issue. Any time you get involved with water out here, it's a hot issue."

Lathrop was unavailable for comment following the decision by the City Council.

Lathrop is entitled to present the plan again at the next meeting of the Plan Commission.

Granite tries for downtown center again

By Bob Slate
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — The city's dream of a downtown retail shopping center took a short step toward reality last night.

Following a closed session, the aldermen voted 11-1 to authorize the Downtown Committee to negotiate an agreement with Walpert Properties of St. Louis for development of 23 acres in the downtown area. The negotiated agreement would then be brought back to the council.

The Walpert development would cover a six-block area bounded by Madison Avenue, 18th Street, Edison Avenue and 20th Street.

The Granite City Steel office building at 20th and State streets, including Magna Bank of Madison County at 20th Street and Edison Avenue, is not included in the development area and not affected by the council action.

The city will be asked to enter into an exclusive option with Walpert. That court has promised which time Walpert will market the proposed development.

During the same period, Wal-pert will perform an economic feasibility study, design the development and produce site plans.

According to the proposed agreement, the city will obtain control of the property either by ownership, options to purchase or condemnation. The property would then be purchased by Walpert at $2 per square foot, or approximately $2 million for the entire tract.

At the time of purchase, the property must be in a "salable condition." All buildings demolished and removed from the site, all clearing and grading done, and all utilities available.

"This is not a final description of the project; it is a formality," said Mayor Von Dee Cruse.

Ward Alderman Jim Miller, Downtown Committee chairman, said, "We've been through this four times before (with other developers). This is just another development company with a proposal."

According to Robert Walpert of Walpert Properties, the firm now manages approximately 300,000 square feet of shopping centers and handles the leasing of another 250,000 square feet of retail space.

Man held in stabbing

GRANITE CITY — A 34-year-old Granite City man is in custody today after he allegedly stabbed a man Tuesday evening in the 2300 block of Illinois Avenue.

Police reported Mark Anthony Breedeau, 29, of the 1300 block of Washington Avenue, was stabbed once in the chest with a knife. Police responding to the scene said Breedeau was found outside the building covered with blood. He reportedly had a 1-inch laceration to his chest.

Breedeau told police officers of the stabbing moments before collapsing unconscious to the sidewalk. He was taken to St. Elizabeth Medical Center by Granite City ambulance where he was admitted.

Police reportedly located Breedeau's attacker a short time later in an apartment in the 2300 block of Illinois Avenue.

Jennison-Wright: Signs are all the IEPA can afford

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — New warning signs went up this week at a contaminated site in West Granite, but no more action is expected in the foreseeable future, said the state Environmental Protection Agency.

The IEPA issued a formal seal order Monday for the former Jennison-Wright facility, citing chemically contaminated soil, sludge and groundwater along with deteriorating buildings and other debris.

The plant is bounded by Missouri Avenue, the railroad tracks and West 23rd Street. The 22nd Street railroad crossing runs through the middle of the site.

Signs were posted on the chain-link fences and new locks were put on the gates.

"There's just no money to do anything else, so it looks like it's going to sit there, kind of festering," said Terry Ayers, a manager in the IEPA Division of Land Pollution Control.

Hopefully, kids will read the signs and not trespass in there.

The IEPA estimates the cleanup cost for the site at $3 million.

Since the early years of the century, the site has been operated by a number of different wood-treating companies, some of which used creosote and pentachlorophenol in the treating process. Experts now believe both chemicals cause cancer.

Jennison-Wright Corp., the last owner of the site, filed for bankruptcy in federal court in November 1989 in its home state of Ohio. That court has promised the IEPA whatever money is left after the banks have been paid.

"Ever if the money from the bankruptcy came through, it would not be nearly enough to clean up the site," Ayers said. "We might be able to fence it off better and cover some of the more contaminated areas."

The Jennison-Wright problem is one of 20 case studies in a new IEPA publication titled "Cleaning Illinois — The Challenge Facing Illinois' Hazardous-Waste Cleanup Efforts."

The publication says those sites, along with many others across the state, are unlikely to ever be cleaned up unless there is an increase in funding.

"Admittedly, the outlook (of the publication) is pretty bleak," Ayers said. "But it's realistic. There's not a lot of hope here for adequate state funds."

Ayers said the IEPA is "pretty much limited" to cleaning up sites where a private business, that has been held responsible for the contamination, is paying all the bills.

A NEW WARNING SIGN

Within the IEPA, Ayers said, many of the project managers for the stalled sites have already been diverted to other jobs and "there may be some trouble starting up the programs again even if funds become available."

Ayers said some legislators have shown an interest in increasing the IEPA's funding for cleanup, but said there is a lot of resistance from the business lobby. He said it is hoped the publication shows the need for more funds.

Rep. Sam Wolf, D-Granite City, said he had not seen the "Cleaning Illinois" publication and, after checking with the IEPA, said he was told it had been a very limited printing. Wolf said a second printing is under way and he has been promised a copy.

As far as the Jennison-Wright site is concerned, Wolf said that, if it is a hazard, money will be found somewhere to clean it up.

Mayor Von Dee Cruse is quoted in the IEPA publication as saying, "Not only has Granite City lost an industry, but the site is unsuitable for any other use until it is cleaned up."

Cruse said he doesn't mind being part of the IEPA's "propaganda for more money." But he also said it's not the whole story.

Insurance hot line popular

SPRINGFIELD — State Rep. Sam Wolf of Granite City reported calls to the Illinois Insurance Hotline, a new toll-free consumer service, topped the 1,000 mark in its first month of operation.

"A total of 1,185 calls to the toll-free number 1-800-444-3338 were received from throughout the state of Illinois during the period Sept. 14-Oct. 12," Wolf said.

"We are very pleased with the overwhelming response," said Kenneth D. Towers, executive director of the Illinois Insurance Information Service, which operates the hot line.

He said a breakdown of the calls provides a clear picture of what the public wants to know about insurance. More than half of the 1,185 calls concerned two areas of insurance — health and automobile.

There were 316 inquiries about health insurance, or 26.7 percent of the total. Callers wanted to know about the different types of coverage, the availability of coverage in various categories, and how the federal Medicare program works, among other things.

A total of 412 calls, or 34.8 percent of the total, related to automobile insurance. Questions were asked about how claims are settled, how the new Illinois mandatory auto insurance law works, and how the Illinois

toll-free number

Automobile Insurance Plan helps drivers who are having difficulty obtaining insurance elsewhere.

Information also was provided on a range of other insurance categories. Life insurance questions totaled 114 (9.6 percent). Homeowners insurance questions added up to 96 (8.1 percent). Medicare supplement questions totaled 57 (4.8 percent), and there were 27 questions (2.3 percent) relating to the annuity field.

Following the mild earthquake felt in the downstate Illinois region on Sept. 28, a number of calls were received on this subject. To date, 25 callers (2.1 percent) asked about earthquake coverage.

Towers said that of the 1,185 calls received in the hot line's first month of operation, only 185 could be classified as grievances. The overwhelming majority, an even 1,000, requested information only.

In addition to the 1,185 calls received, 323 calls have been made by hot line consultants tracking down answers. Thus, the total telephone activity in the first month of the hot line was 1,508 calls. The stated objective of the hot line is to answer questions accurately and quickly, but if research is required, to get back to the caller within 48 hours.

"It is gratifying that this consumer service is achieving its objective — to make us all better informed about this sometimes complex subject," Towers said.

"At the same time," we are glad to assist callers who voice any type of grievance about their insurance. Each of the 1,800 companies writing insurance in Illinois have appointed a staff member to serve as a liaison with the hot line. "Our experience thus far is that the interaction between the hot line consultant and the company liaison results in speedy resolution of issues."

The Illinois Insurance Information Service is a trade organization made up of major Illinois companies. These companies are funding the hot line at an annual cost of a quarter of a million dollars.

The line is staffed by professional consultants with many years of experience in the field. Hours for the line are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. The service is bilingual, with the capability to deal with inquiries from those who speak Spanish. The hot line is designed to supplement the basic information provided by insurance agents and insurance companies.

Police

Drugs found, car seized

Keith A. Gruen, 26, of Medora was charged by the Madison County State's Attorney's Office on Nov. 18 with a felony count of possession of cannabis and a felony count of possession of a controlled substance.

Gruen was originally pulled over by Granite City police for failure to signal a turn at 2:25 a.m. Nov. 17. A check of the contents of the automobile, a brown 1979 Datsun B210, revealed "several bags of a green, leafy substance," later found to be marijuana, police officers alleged. An exact quantity was not revealed.

Assistant Police Chief Ron Selph said the case would probably qualify under a new law which allows police departments to reap the profits of confiscated property.

Selph said the state's attorney's office is "looking into the possibility."

Under the law, the Granite City Police Department would become the owner of the vehicle, as well as any cash confiscated. Selph said approximately $300 cash was seized.

Bond for Gruen was set at $50,000.

Battery of two alleged

Carl Edward Tesreau II, 18, of the 4000 block of Old Alt Road was charged with two counts of battery when arrested at his home at about 4:30 p.m. Nov. 16.

Jeremiah Justice, 15, of the 4100 block of Melrose Avenue told police that he and a friend, Jay W. Hicks, 15, were walking home from school at the rear of the Central Hardware Store when the suspect pulled his car near them and got out.

Tesreau told Justice to leave one of his relatives alone and then punched Justice in the face twice and kicked him, Justice alleged.

Hicks, who also lives in the 4100 block of Melrose Avenue, alleged the suspect then punched him in the mouth, chipping two of his teeth. The parents of both boys signed complaints on behalf of their sons.

Tesreau was booked at police headquarters and released on a notice to appear for a court hearing. He alleged the victims had made degrading remarks to the relative.

Deception alleged here

Margaret Walsh, 31, of Fairmont City was arrested by the Madison County Sheriff's Office on a Granite City felony warrant alleging two counts of deceptive practice. Local authorities were told Nov. 16.

Victim in the case was listed as Kozzyak's Market, 2600 Nameoki Road. Bond on the warrant was set at $15,000. Walsh was detained in custody at the Madison County Jail in Edwardsville pending a court hearing.

Parked-truck burglary

Kathy A. Ring of the 1700 block of Delmar Avenue reported Nov. 16 that a burglar got inside a 1982 Ford truck parked in front of her home and took a wallet from the dashboard. The wallet contained $46 and miscellaneous items.

Less than an hour later, Ring informed police that two girls found her wallet in a dumpster not far from her residence. The cash had been removed.

Granite City

Parked auto burglarized

A radar detector valued at $130 and two equalizers worth $150 were taken in the burglary of a 1980 Chevrolet Impala belonging to Benson Bradley of the 100 block of Carver Street, Eagle Park, he reported Nov. 16. The vehicle was parked at Granite City Bowl, 3701 Nameoki Road.

Bradley reported seeing three men near his car and, when he approached them, the men drove away.

License warrant served

David Paul Christian, 19, of the 2100 block of West Chain of Rocks Road, Mitchell, was arrested at 9:12 p.m. Nov. 16 in the 3600 block of Nameoki Road on a warrant alleging failure to appear on a charge of driving while his license was suspended. Christian also was ticketed for driving while his license was suspended.

Woman slapped, kicked

Ethel Elkins of Kirkpatrick Homes reported being struck by a teen-age girl at 4:40 p.m. Nov. 16.

Elkins, 29, said the incident occurred while she was standing on the sidewalk in the 1000 block of Maple Street. The assailant came out of a residence, grabbed her by the hair and slapped her face, the victim said.

The suspect then threw Elkins to the ground and kicked her on the left side of the body.

An officer noted that Elkins sustained a small laceration to the right knee and reported pain in the left side.

Car windshield smashed

Brian F. Winfield of the 3200 block of Wayne Avenue reported Nov. 16 that vandals smashed the rear windshield on his 1983 Chevrolet Corsica while the vehicle was parked in the 2400 block of Edwards Street.

Retired policeman places ad: 'Things done free' — really

By Lois Kendall
Staff writer

"Retired policeman wants something to do; things done free; run errands, driver, handy, etc. Free. Call 10 a.m.-noon. South County area, 630-7500."

The above is an actual classified ad, placed in the Journal earlier this month, by South Countyman Glenn Roy.

He received 30 calls within the first two weeks, Roy says, with callers ranging from incredulous to skeptical to grateful.

"One guy said, 'What do you really want,'" Roy says. "Another retired cop called, figuring he might know me. He said, 'A couple of people called for advice on police-related questions.'"

But he also has gotten requests to install storm windows, put up a ceiling fan and repair the brackets on a banister, as well as numerous requests for transportation.

"I've already got my reward," Roy says with a broad grin. "I've been offered two dog-dance lessons and the name of a lady to clean my house."

Roy, 60, admits that paying more than $30 to advertise his "free" services is a bit unusual. But, he says, he's been "turned around" all his life. "Everybody tells me I've got a first name for a last name and vice versa," Roy says, rolling his eyes and gesturing with his big, thick-fingered hands.

Recently separated from the wife of seven years, Roy says he simply had too much time on his hands. "I needed something to do, and I woke up in the middle of the night with this idea," he says.

Roy says he's mainly trying to attract other people who need services the most and are the least able to afford them.

"The word is 'free' — that's why I put it in there twice," he says emphatically. "I don't want to make money. I have no job; I don't want a job. I want to help people — free."

He says he put "retired policeman" in the ad to gain the skeptic's trust. Roy actually spent 30 years on the St. Louis Police Department, retiring in September of 1987.

He began his career as a beat cop along the old "stroll" area at Sarah and Olive streets, where his son Steve, also a policeman, now patrols.

"He's locking up the daughters and granddaughters of the same prostitutes," he says wryly. While he's enjoying his retirement in his fourth year of vacation — Roy misses the fast-paced life of a policeman. He filled in some of his time by delivering meals on wheels and doing home handyman projects, but the days still loomed long.

But since placing the newspaper ad, his calendar is rapidly filling up. He already has commitments booked into December.

"I'm just trying to be 'Mr. Nice Guy,'" Roy says. "I always tried to do that as a policeman. I wanted to be the 'nicest' policeman on the force."

He trots out a 1981 bowling trophy he was presented from the Press Radio TV Bowling League, naming Roy "Mr. Nice Guy."

"I bowled in that league at Tropicana Lanes for about five years — until my knees went bad — and that trophy means more to me than a 300 game," he says. "That trophy is me."

Many persons today deny that the Bible is God's Word. Many arguments are brought forth that it cannot be. However, they cannot deny that this world and the people in it would be much better off if we all lived by it!

God's Word must be believed. We must have faith in it. Faith is the only thing that will bring it to life and make it work for us. Jesus defeated Satan and all his power by simply stating, "It is written."

After-holiday blood drive set

GRANITE CITY — Holidays mean sharing good times with your family and sharing family traditions. One sad tradition surrounding holidays is the traditional increase in highway travel and the accompanying increase in blood usage because of automobile accidents. Another fact is the decrease of blood donations due to people not taking the time to give blood.

The Tri-City Chapter, American Red Cross, is dedicated to conducting blood drives throughout the Quad City area in an effort to maintain a sufficient blood supply. The Tri-City Chapter also is dedicated to sponsoring a blood drive after two major holidays — Memorial and Thanksgiving days.

On Monday, Nov. 26, the Red Cross will conduct a blood drive at the Eagles Aerie 1126 Home, 2558 Madison Ave. The drive will be sponsored by the Tri-City Chapter and will be conducted in the new Eagles addition from 2 to 7 p.m.

Recently, drive participation has increased to a point that there have been staffing problems and donors have experienced short delays in the donation process. The Tri-City Chapter is working to make the blood donation process as simple as possible, with no delays for those willing to donate.

The Red Cross urges that every healthy adult 17 years of age or older make an effort to donate. Those who are 16 years old may donate with a parent's permission slip, which may be obtained through the Tri-City Chapter office.

East-West will honor three

ST. LOUIS — The East-West Gateway Coordinating Council has announced its first Emissaries for Youth Award winners.

Three winners were selected by a panel of residents based on efforts to positively affect the lives of children and young people.

For over 25 years, Tommy Webb devoted thousands of hours to coaching Little League baseball in Centerville and East St. Louis. Webb's Khoury League teams have won district as well as international Khoury League championships.

His work with young men 8 to 18 has helped inspire and encourage them to become responsible, productive citizens, officials said.

Even though he spends countless hours guiding children, he has time to be an excellent father of three successful children; with all of his successes Webb remains humble and many in East St. Louis consider him an unsung hero, officials added.

Marion C. Cairns, retiring member of the House of Representatives 97th District, was an advocate for children's rights in her work with the Education Committee and the Children, Youth and Families Committee.

She was able to establish the Children's Trust Fund and was named Child Advocate of the Year in 1985 by the Council On Child Abuse and Neglect. Lynn Lyss, chairman of the East-West Gateway Advisory Board for Youth said, "Marion's career has demonstrated leadership that ensures policies that are responsive to youth."

Fred Epstein started a day care center in 1985 to honor his late mother, who loved children. The Zeldia Epstein Day Care Center was the first day care center in Missouri to be established in an industrial worksite. Epstein's company, INDECO, was later named by Working Mother magazine as one of the top 75 companies in the United States for which to work.

These three winners will receive awards at the annual meeting of the East-West Gateway Coordinating Council on Nov. 30 at 11:30 a.m. at the Marriott Downtown Pavilion Hotel.

Tickets are available by calling Fern Littlefield at (314) 421-4220 or 274-2750 in Illinois.

Education remedy for NIMBY, panel says

By Jean Dean
Correspondent

Better public understanding of environmental issues and options would be the best remedy for the "NIMBY Syndrome," a panel of environmentalists agreed Oct. 30.

NIMBY is an acronym for "Not In My Back Yard."

It is usually thought of as meaning a citizen with a negative reaction to a proposal for any change or facility perceived as detracting from the desirability of his home neighborhood.

"I view a NIMBY as an extreme example of our failure to realize we're all environmentalists," said attorney Elsa Steward, compliance officer for the St. Louis-based Sigma Chemical Co.

The opposition results from lack of information and a fear of the unknown, Steward said.

Steward was one of a panel of three environmental workers who discussed dealing with the NIMBY Syndrome as part of an all-day environmental conference.

The conference was sponsored by the St. Louis Regional Commerce and Growth Association and was held at the downtown Marriott.

Other panelists were G. Tracy Mehan III, director of the Missouri Department of Natural Resources, and Roger Pryor, executive director of the Missouri Coalition for the Environment, a citizens group.

Stressing her view that opposition by "Nimbies" stems from fear and not from insufficient information, Steward told the audience that some amount of hazardous waste must be expected in today's society.

"Generating some hazardous waste is essential in order to protect our living standards," Steward said, citing isotopes used in medicine.

Steward added, however, that even these "essential" wastes must be controlled.

Present technology allows for safe handling.

Also, reduction of waste is possible, she said, adding that plant and design improvements should enable use of less hazardous materials in the future.

Steward recommended tighter regulations and well-trained operators, so that both incinerators and hazardous-waste sites would be acceptable.

"But the public should be encouraged to participate in the permitting process," she said.

"Everybody will benefit from such waste facilities," she asserted.

"Try to get the focus away from whether we should have them (waste facilities), and deal with public concerns such as location," she said.

"Educate the public."

Pryor said that opposition groups are formed of persons "frustrated by a feeling of powerlessness."

"They find the air, the water, the land all contaminated, and they want to stop whatever they perceive as causing this," he said.

But people need more information. They have the right to have a public hearing, Pryor said.

"All of us must find ways to plug the people into the process," he said.

Pryor said that in the case of medical waste, the public often has an exaggerated view of the dangers.

"Medical waste is one (topic) in which public concern has outstripped the issues," Pryor said, in answer to a question from the audience as to the possibility of an incinerator at an area hospital.

"A hospital incinerator, on its own site, for its own materials, is reasonable," Pryor said.

And the hospital people could be expected to run it properly, he added.

"We have to deal with realities," Pryor said. "Does the community not want a hospital there? Having waste is a part of it."

A possible alternative, he said, would be that the hospital might end up taking its waste elsewhere.

"To a commercial operator, perhaps not as scrupulous," Pryor said.

"We need regulations, and we need to apply the regulations," he said.

"But you also have to have faith in your government."

Mehan, at the DNR, said he is responsible for issuing most state landfill and air emission permits. However, in St. Louis city and county, Kansas City, Jackson County and Springfield local governments issue the permits.

According to Mehan, the public doesn't understand the permit process.

Land-use decisions are made by local authorities, he said, and the DNR does not have this authority.

"The DNR is subject to the law," Mehan emphasized.

"If they (applicants for waste-facility permits) meet the requirements, they get the permit. If not, they don't," he concluded.

THE LAW AND YOU

BY RICK REED
Attorney At Law

Antenuptial agreements, which are known as prenuptial agreements in other states, have been a topic of interest because of the Donald Trump case. An antenuptial agreement in Illinois should be in writing in order to be enforceable, and there must be a full disclosure of assets by each of the parties before entering into the agreement.

What types of people want an antenuptial agreement? Generally speaking, young couples just starting out and people who have never accumulated anything in life would have no interest in such a contract. In many cases, however, couples entering into such an agreement have adult children by prior marriages and want their respective properties to pass to these children in the event of a divorce, rather than to each other.

In one recent Illinois case, a young woman's husband died and left her a substantial amount of life insurance. She later fell in love with another man and decided to marry him. She wanted an antenuptial agreement to ensure that if the second marriage didn't work out, she would still have the insurance money to educate and raise her children. Her fiancé agreed to sign the antenuptial agreement, and a full disclosure of her assets was made to him.

In another case, a couple in their seventies decided to marry. Each had accumulated substantial holdings. The woman was a widow and had received life insurance proceeds at the time of the death of her first husband. The man was a widower and had been a successful businessman. In a case such as this, an antenuptial agreement makes sense to protect the respective assets of each of the parties.

It is generally recommended that each of the parties seek independent legal advice in these matters. If the agreement provides for a disproportionate division of the assets, the Court will carefully consider whether the man and woman had separate attorneys and whether a full disclosure of their assets was made. If both of these requirements are met, and if there was no fraud at the time the agreement was entered into, then generally speaking the antenuptial agreement will be valid.

Thankful on Thanksgiving

Nineteen-ninety has not lacked negative developments, but let's focus this Thanksgiving week on the many positive occurrences. Quad Citizens have much to be thankful for locally.

Ground has been broken for Gateway Packaging's new Northgate Industrial Park plant, which will make paper, film and foil lidding for portion-control food service products.

PVO Foods is constructing a 19th Street at West 20th Street plant to process vegetable oils for the food industry.

Environmental Recycling has chosen former Union Starch/Miles Laboratories property to build a plant to make fence posts and cargo pallets from recycled plastics.

Granite City Steel is nearing the completion of its second continuous steel caster, part of a $140-million plus investment.

American Steel Foundries is adding a second production shift for side frames and bolsters for railroad freight car undercarriages.

St. Elizabeth Medical Center has completed plans for a new downtown medical office building while continuing to expand its medical staff and diagnostic equipment.

Citizens have rallied here and elsewhere for prompt development of Scott Air Force Base for joint civil and military use. Construction of a new Clark Bridge between Alton and St. Louis has been assured, and preliminary planning is under way for a new Mississippi River bridge between St. Louis and Madison-St. Clair counties.

The Madison County Transit District has decided to expand its services. Construction of a new Madison County governmental administration building continues to progress.

The Granite City Campus of Belleville Area College will be remodeled to create a new industrial training center. The Metro East Sanitary District has completed the first phase of a five-year program to improve flood protection.

New Quik-Trip stores, a Shoney's Restaurant and other retail establishments have been opened. Madison has annexed hundreds of acres to the south, including many businesses, extending its limits to the Granite City and East St. Louis boundaries.

Major upgrading of Rock Road has been completed and Madison Avenue is being repaved. New auto dealership centers have been built on Illinois Route 3 at West Pontoon Road. East Granite City has been selected for neighborhood redevelopment. The Granite City Public Library's area has been expanded and converted into a library district.

Additional federal funding has been provided to complete the Melvin Price Locks and Dam between Mitchell and Alton, and to start work on the Metro Link light-rail transit line between Lambert Airport, the McDonnell Douglas plant, downtown St. Louis and, relatively soon, Scott Air Force Base. Steps are being taken to create a second Tri-City Regional Port District harbor a mile north of the present local harbor.

Seeking state funding, the Mid-America Aquacenter promoter hopes to locate it on Interstate 255 somewhere between I-270 and I-70-55.

Walter Milton has received the 1990 Community Achievement Award from the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce. Jaclyn Greer of Granite City has become Miss Illinois now that the holder of that title has been crowned as Miss America. Granite City High School has captured its 10th Illinois soccer championship in 19 years with its second straight state title.

Many new homes have been started in the Quad City area and the Legacy golf course in Granite City has been opened to the public. Generous local individuals, organizations, unions, businesses and industries have contributed a record $1,045,000 to the Tri-Cities Area United Way and are now sending donations to the Salvation Army for its $85,000 Tree of Lights holiday campaign.

If we count our blessings this Thanksgiving, we'll find that the list is long and impressive.

A little snow for the holidays

SOMEWHERE UP NORTH — The weather outside was frightful. But, indoors, there were chestnuts roasting on an open fire and all around, the sound of bells. People laughing all the way, no doubt.

It was a festive occasion in Santa's workshop. Elves were busy giving Mrs. Santy a busy day whatever it is she does. And Mr. Santa was preparing his nightly bowl full of jolly.

But there was dissension in the ranks.

Off in one remote corner of the workshop, just behind a stack of Rub-a-Dub Dollies and just in front of a crate of Wet 'n' Wild Barbies, there was a tactical plot afoot. Some of the elves were revolting.

Suddenly, the buzz of saws, the hiss of steam engines and the thump of hammers on thumbs came to a halt. The silence was deafening. All work stopped and eyes shifted to a small (is there any other kind?) group of elves who were walking over to the table where Santa was enjoying his jolly.

Appointed spokesman Randy Elf was first to speak.

"Ah-hem," he said, his Munchkin-like voice shaking. "Nick, we got a problem."

Santa wondered what it was this time. "Oh? I thought we fixed that lock on the men's room."

"No, Santa, a different problem."

"Oh, what now?"

"The boys and me have been talkin'. And we think we're going to call it quits unless we get some better working conditions."

Santa looked truly startled. "What do you mean, better? You get to work every day of the year, eat as much as you want, and you've got plenty of job security."

Randy was quick to reply: "Let me tell ya something, Nick. Even elves need a weekend off now and then. And if you think eating reindeer soup and jelly three times a day is haute cuisine, you've got another thing coming! Not to mention we're tired of cleaning up after Rudolph."

Santa cautiously eyed the growing group around him.

"Well, what is it that you want, then?" he asked.

"For starters, we've voted to join a union," Randy said. "And if we don't get what we want this time around, you can kiss Christmas goodbye."

"Ingrates!" Santa roared. "Thirty-four days left til Christmas, and you're threatening a walkout!"

Heads nodded all around the table.

The jolly old snow knew he was whipped. For years he'd catered to these little monsters. And now they were stabbing him in the back.

"Well, I must say I'm disappointed," Santa said. "But it looks like I'm not going to have any choice. What happens now?"

"Here," Randy said, offering a union card. "This is our attorney. Call him at that number and we'll get started on talks tomorrow."

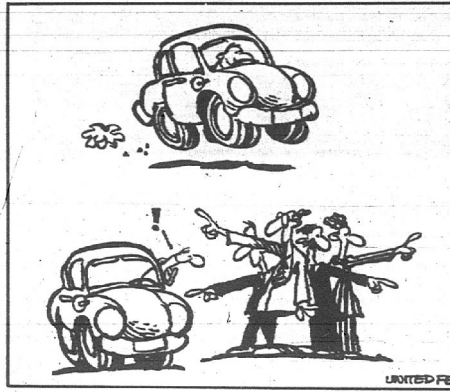

Santa looked incredulous. "Amalgamated Carpenters and Toybuilders Local 47?"

"Yep," said Randy. "AFL-CIO."

BAC board suffering an identity crisis

By Rick Arnold
Staff writer

It may be a nasty rumor but I've heard that in the next edition of Webster's Dictionary, next to the term "taxation," there will be a notation saying, "see Belleville Area College Board of Trustees."

Yes, after warring storms in recent years over former chancellor Bruce Wissore, a failed tax increase referendum and several tuition increases, another round of dark clouds and gusty winds is rocking the BAC trustees' boat.

First, some background. In the mid-1980s, Belleville Area College, which had served primarily residents of St. Clair and Monroe counties since 1946, opened campuses in Granite City, located in Madison County, and Red Bud, located in Randolph County.

It's important to remember that, for a period of time, all seven BAC board trustees were from St. Clair County, with six living in Belleville.

In the years following the opening of the Granite City and Red Bud campuses, residents of Madison and Randolph counties began expressing the sentiment that their voices were not being heard on college matters.

In fact, some started mentioning the ever-popular "taxation without representation" phrase.

From this faction of unhappy residents sprang a successful movement to divide the 2,100-square-mile college district into seven areas of equal population, with the idea that one trustee would be elected from each of the seven areas.

Redistricting proponents said this new method of electing trustees would better guarantee that all district residents would be represented on the BAC board.

Apparently, the general public agreed because voters approved redistricting by a 2-to-1 margin in a referendum in November 1988. It will take effect with the November 1991 election.

So, now these folks are feeling pretty confident. They have campuses in their areas. They're guaranteed representation on the college board.

Now, some want to go after a bigger prize: changing the college's name to reflect the larger area that the college serves.

And that is what now has the BAC board in a tizzy.

After hashing, rehashing, and mashing the subject for an hour at its meeting Wednesday night, Nov. 14, the trustees finally decided to put the name question on the April 1991 ballot, in the form of an advisory referendum.

The question will read: "Should the name of Community College District 522 Belleville Area College be changed to Community College District 522 College of Southwestern Illinois?"

What was confusing, if not comical, at Wednesday's meeting was that, though name-change proponents seemed to have the motion to make it non-binding, they were willing to let the voters have their say on the matter.

However, name-change opponents, most notably board members Ted Farmer and Elizabeth Jenner, raised vocal opposition to the referendum idea, even though it was Jenner who made the motion to make it non-binding, meaning the board would not be obligated to act based on the referendum's outcome.

It was obvious that Jenner and Farmer were afraid that the public sentiment might be opposive their own.

It was especially surprising to hear Farmer oppose the referendum, since he has always made "democracy" and "the voice of the people" cornerstones of his campaigns for the BAC board and, most recently, county board chairman.

Changing the college's name is obviously a highly emotional issue and as board chairman Larry Reinbeck put it, "a lot bigger than the eight of us sitting around this table."

Personally, I think changing the college's name is a good idea.

Though it's nice to honor tradition, it's more important to accept change and growth, and the necessary steps to adequately deal with these factors.

True, College of Southwestern Illinois may not have the charm of Belleville Area College. And, true, it may take several years for the college's reputation to be rebuilt under its new name.

But if the college truly has the quality faculty, staff and curriculum it claims to have, and I believe it does, then the college regardless of its name can maintain the lofty academic status that it enjoys now.

Taxpayers taken for a ride

To the editor:

Cheer up! It could be worse. I cheered up and it got

You may recall reading two months ago a report of a 200-mile taxpayer-financed cab ride from Springfield to Alton for a simple dental extraction.

On Oct. 29, a different person was sent 200 miles from Springfield to Alton for a simple dental extraction.

This time, the taxpayer-financed ride was not in a cab but in an ambulance.

Procedures at the Dental School are performed by undergraduate dental students and, for this reason, severely medically compromised patients are not usually treated at the clinic.

If a patient is so severely medically compromised as to require transportation by ambulance, treatment would be better done in a hospital.

If hospitalization is not required, and it was not, it is not less costly to pay someone in Springfield 10 percent (or in this case 2 percent) of the transportation cost to actually perform the extraction?

Increases in property tax rates and multipliers, gasoline tax increases, license plate fees and a mere 20 percent state income tax increase cannot keep up with our bureaucrats as they continue taking every-

Billboard on life has gone

To the editor:

A billboard in the 2100 block of Madison Avenue has been removed. Its last message portrayed two simple markers, for two major holocausts, to remind Granite City's southbound Madison Avenue motorists of over 30 million persons denied the right to live.

Local artist Dale Dickey completed the billboard the very day Supreme Court Justice Brennan announced his resignation to the American people.

Hence, "Roe V. Wade, 1973-1990" may have announced the beginning of the end of the wholesale destruction of life and the beginning of the time informed moral lawmakers can protect the rights of women, men and children.

Now the sign is gone, and another First Amendment vehicle dismantled — the second one this year.

No flag burning here, no picture of a cross dipped in urine, although the Supreme Court approves of these symbols of free speech. No, just a picture of a lively pink baby trying to urge abortion as an alternative to tombstones to remind us of arbitrary death.

I think it is ironic that Right-to-Life billboards, deemed worthy by the Granite City Press-Record and pictured in the paper, are soon dismantled and disappear without a trace.

Some element in Granite City is violating the First Amendment right of others, and their message is clear: "Don't let people know that 'choice' means a dead baby."

Thanks for an editorial page with a renewed sense of truth.

Theater's loss will be sad

To the editor:

I am writing in regard to your recent article about Granite City's purchase of the Washington Theater.

For those of us who grew up in Granite City, this wonderful old structure will be missed. Many a childhood afternoon was spent there watching the double feature matinee (with an occasional cartoon).

Much popcorn, candy and soda were consumed there. And for those of us who grew up without air conditioning, the big "It's Cool Inside" sign promised relief from the afternoon heat.

Accompanying the article was a photo of the theater in its present miserable condition. Though accurate, the photo did not do justice to the memories and to the former beauty of the theater.

Therefore, I have enclosed for possible publication a photo of the Washington in its iridescent recent glory. The enclosed photo was taken during the Washington's last years as a theater.

A friend of mine was manager of the Washington for Mid-America Theaters about this time, and I had the opportunity to photograph the Washington from the depths of the basement to the platform high above the stage, inside the building and out.

The Washington Theater in better days

It's a neat old structure.

First-graders show how turkeys are made

First graders in Bobbie Dallas's class, at Harris Elementary School in Madison spent Monday morning making their Thanksgiving turkeys as part of a class art project. After the students had their turkeys all put together, they wrote what they were thankful for on the feathers. Most students were very thankful for their families and all the goodies they will be getting over the holidays. One student was even thankful for the Mets. Oh well, at least one person is.

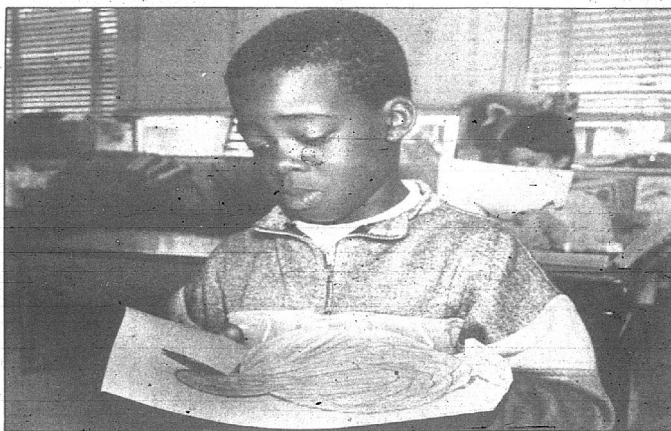

SIX-YEAR-OLD Ashley Hilton writes what she is thankful for on her turkey's feathers.

Hall of Fame building salutes excellence, memorable performances

Things our community can be thankful for this Thanksgiving include the Granite City Sports Hall of Fame.

The new building on the Granite City High School campus is expected to be opened to the public in August.

Alvin T. Barnes Jr. got the project rolling in the past and credits many others, including Frank Kraus, the current chairman, with helping bring the dream to a reality.

STAN MUSIAL, the retired Cardinals baseball Hall of Famer, once occupied Barnes' time when Al was a major league sports writer.

Also a former Granite City Associated Retailers executive director, former Wood River editor and former Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville sports information director, Barnes is impressed by the quality and quantity of athletes here, both amateur and professional.

As a result of his belief that the local sports community is uniquely blessed, Barnes spent ed efforts to permanently honor our super stars.

INITIAL HALL OF FAME members numbering 57 were announced at a banquet in 1987 and more names were added at dinners in 1988, 1989 and 1990.

Honorees total 116 individuals and recognition also has been given to such teams as the 1928 and 1946 Granite City High School football teams, several Sacred Heart baseball teams, the 1948 GCHS baseball squad, the 1940 GCHS basketball team and the 1939 Granite City DeMolay basketball team.

A multipurpose facility has been built through donations of funds, labor and materials. With Barnes as curator, plans have been made to display plaques, trophies and memorabilia.

THE HALL WILL HOUSE not only the sports area but also a ticket-sales office, concession stand area and restrooms.

The purpose of the Sports Hall of Fame is to "honor individuals and/or teams attaining a level of achievement believed to be above average in expectations and standards of athletic performance and participation."

Those inducted are cited for contributions that have helped develop a "tradition of excellence resulting in memorable performances, legends and legacies."

Involvement can be as a player, coach, organizer, manager, administrator or combination of those roles. Inductees must be at least 40 years of age.

A GRANITE CITIAN for 36 years, Barnes developed his "long-cherished hope" for a local sports hall of fame after becoming aware of this community's wealth of "talent and prowess."

His evaluation is borne out by a number of examples, including Granite City High School's soccer players.

Although most of them are still too young to be considered for the hall of fame, they haven't been exactly idle, winning 10 of the state's first 19 soccer championships, including the last two in a row.

The 10-of-19 accomplishment may be unprecedented anywhere in the world.

Downtown

The last development project by Walpert was the Ferguson Square Shopping Center on North Florissant Road in Ferguson, Mo.

In a letter to Granite City Economic Development Director Alan Orbital, Walpert said, "As the result of our relationships with literally hundreds of retailers and chains, we feel we are well suited to market your site and Granite City."

"Additionally, our daily business keeps us abreast of expanding retailers, their needs and the markets they are feared toward."

The aldermen had also been presented with a proposal from St. Louis East Development Corp., also of St. Louis. That proposal, a 10-year plan that included a senior citizen housing project, a designer discount mall and a Mexican restaurant, was turned down in favor of the Walpert proposal.

About a year ago, after its failure to attract a Wal-Mart store to the downtown area, the city announced plans to seek private investors for the 74 properties in the six-block area targeted for redevelopment.

Orbital and Miller said that effort had not been an overwhelming success, but had been enough of a success to shop around the idea of developing the area to a large number of developers.

Fourth Ward Alderman Dan Brown voted against the motion to authorize negotiations with Walpert. Fifth Ward Alderman Matron Conroy, Alderman Emerald Daves were absent.

Skaters start well despite losses

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

All things considered, the Warrior hockey team — despite losing its first two games — isn't off to a bad start.

Granite City opened the season in about the toughest way imaginable, with games against perennial powerhouses CBC and DeMet. The Icemen blanked the Warriors 5-0 at North County on Friday, but Granite City almost pulled off an upset in the home opener Monday. It took an empty net goal with 13 seconds left to allow DeMet to escape Wilson Park with a 7-5 win.

"I would rather open the season against teams like that," said Warrior coach Garry Henson. "It gives you a better idea of where you stand."

The Warriors stand pretty good if they can compete that well against the upper echelon of the Mid-States Club Hockey Association. Sophomore Brent Golden played very well in goal Friday as CBC outshot Granite City 4-0.

CBC has scored in double figures against everybody else," said Henson. "All of our players played well on every shift."

The Warriors hung right with DeMet all the way Monday, with a couple of newcomers coming through in a big way. Derek Zirkelbach of Collinsville had three goals and an assist and Jack Chandler of Dupo had four assists. Kevin Sittion and Rick Whyers scored the other Warrior goals, but Brent Wiley had four goals for DeMet and Dan Kelly Jr. had a goal and two assists. Kelly is the son of the late Blues broadcaster and the brother of current announcer John Kelly.

"Chandler hadn't been on skates since February, but we pressed him into action," said Henson. "He's a great athlete."

Chandler played football for Dupo on Saturday, but was available when the Tigers lost their state semifinal game.

"We didn't have Mike Jaros (III)," said Henson. "That made a difference. We only had 12 skaters. We had a couple of bad penalties, and we can't afford to do that with our shortage of numbers."

DeMet took a 3-1 lead, but the Warriors trimmed the margin to a single goal four times.

Wiley scored the backbreaker five seconds into the third period to make it 6-4. Whyers scored with four minutes left and the Warriors had some more chances before Jim McMillan's goal into an empty net.

Senior Robbie Nolan played goal as Granite City outshot the Spartans 28-26.

"Robbie let in a couple he might have stopped, but he also saved some that should have been goals," Henson said. "That usually evens out every game."

Mike Naeve, Nathan Weaver and Chad St. Peters also had assists for the Warriors, who open up North Division play with home games against Hazelwood East (Monday) and McCluer (Tuesday). Both games at Wilson Park start at 8:45 p.m.

SECTIONAL QUALIFIERS: The Warrior wrestling team returns four members — all juniors — who advanced to the sectional last year as sophomores. They are, left to right, Ryan King, Mark McKechn, Jerry Heuschman and Chris Hoffstot. King advanced to state in the 103-pound weight class.

Young, experienced grapplers open tonight

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

GRANITE CITY There can be a big difference between wrestling on the varsity level as a sophomore and then as a junior.

If several Warriors can realize that difference, this could be one of the most successful seasons Granite City has had in a long time.

Head coach Mike Garland presided over a kiddie corps last year — a lineup which more often than not featured eight sophomores and one freshman. They took their share of lumps, but the Warriors still managed a 14-8 dual meet record and sent six wrestlers to the sectional. Four of those return as juniors, and one, 103-pound Ryan King, advanced to state and is the leading returning winner (32-12) and point-collector (153).

But gone are three seniors (Todd Hutchison, Brad Massey and Larry Hahne) who combined for 88 wins last year. Hahne (32-9) led the team with 33 pins and 181 points at 189 pounds.

"Todd had more than 100 wins in his career and Larry was the type of kid who always gave us a chance to win when we were behind going into his match because he could really pile up the points," said Garland. "And Brad was a big contributor when he was healthy."

The possibilities this year are exciting. Garland has an experienced lineup which should stay together for two more years, with only one senior among 10 returning lettermen. The fourth-year coach (21-16-2 at 139 pounds) and Jerry Heuschman (27-14-1 at 135) had fine seasons, but it's how well the other nine come on this year which will determine how good we'll be."

Garland singled out wrestlers like Jeff Heine more than Scott Simon, Russ Buchek and Al Wilared as keys to the season. All of them are juniors this year and had losing records as sophomores. But Garland expects improvement.

"This group is a lot more confident in its ability now than it was last year at this time," he said. "A big reason is they won't be constantly going up against kids two years older than they are anymore.

"This is the third year of varsity competition for some of them, so they've seen quite a bit. And a kid like (sophomore) Pat Scheffer got some valuable experience at the Prairie State Games this summer. He got to wrestle kids from the northern part of the state and that always helps."

Scheffer could get the nod at 103 pounds when the Warriors open the season tonight at 6 p.m. with home matches against Carbondale, Centralia and Edwardsville. In fact, the only seniors who figure to see much action are 171-pound lettermen Scott Wilson (8-16 at 152 last year), 189-pounder Marc Cotter (back after a two-year layoff) and heavyweight Joe Rodriguez (7-5 at the JV level).

Jason Morrien, who broke his foot last year, will be out a few weeks as a lettering freshman at 112 last year and could start at 119 when he gets back. Pat Jeauson (12-12 at the JV level) is a sophomore possibility at 189 and sophomore Andy Richards (25-5 at JV) will compete with Scott Wilson at 171. Sophomore Bobby Wilson (21-12 at JV) is the leading candidate at 130.

Other than that, it's all juniors. Chris Haas is the leading candidate at 112. King could move up to 119, McKechn (15-19) is pencilled in at 125, Dan Hicks (8-7 at JV) will compete with Bobby Wilson at 130, Hoffstot goes at 135, Jerry Heuschman at 140, Jeff Heuschman (4-13) at 145, Simon (10-23-1) at 152, Buchek (10-15) at 160 and Wilared (12-23-1) at heavyweight.

Others who could contend for a spot are junior Robert Viessman at 189, and sophomores Dan Schrader and Jason Blair in the middle weights.

"We don't have big numbers, but the group we have has really worked hard," said Garland.

"The four kids who went to the sectionals have become pretty good leaders. And most of these kids wrestled in the spring and summer and that makes a big difference."

"There's always somebody who comes back as a sleeper. They haven't done a whole lot in the past, but suddenly they have a great season. I hope somebody like Buchek or Simon or Wilared is like that. They could make the difference."

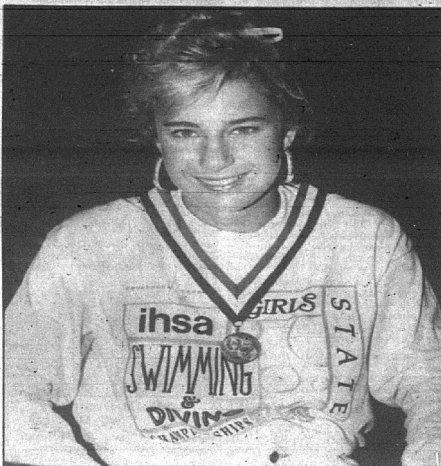

"These guys can't depend on a year just because they're juniors. It might seem like time is on their side, but you never know when injuries might hit. So you have to go for it when you can."

Garland believes Cahokia, Belleville West and Collinsville are among the best in the area this year.

"There's some good balance," he said. "We've added a lot this year right after the New Year against Quincy, Lincoln and Chatham Glenwood that will give us some exposure to the northern teams."

"But, we've only got three home meets this year and that includes the Holiday Tournament on Dec. 27-28. I'm not too happy with that and I'm not sure how it happened. It's tough telling the parents to get their gas money ready. I guess we'll be the Road Warriors this year. But it doesn't make any difference where you wrestle. The mats are the same everywhere."

JENNY BAKER with her bronze medal from last weekend's state finals in Evanston.

Baker's reputation backed by 3rd-place finish at state meet

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

GRANITE CITY — When it comes to high school swimming and diving, the balance of power in Illinois is concentrated in the northeast corner of the state. But those "in the know" in Chicago realize there is one downstate factor to consider.

That factor is named Jenny Baker.

The Granite City High School junior continued to earn more respect last weekend by finishing third in the state diving finals held at Evanston High School. And her 338.30 points left Baker less than nine points away from second place. It's the highest finish ever for a southern Illinois diver in the state competition, but it came as no surprise to Baker's northern hosts.

"Every year they hold a meet prior to state which they call a 'mini-state,'" said Baker's mother, Judy. "That gives them a pretty good idea of where everybody stands heading into the finals. But after that was held this year, they were saying 'Yes, but don't forget Jenny Baker from Granite City.' That was one of the neatest things to hear."

Baker, who doesn't get nearly the practice time of divers up north who compete on teams sanctioned by the IHSA, finished 30th at state as a freshman and seventh last year. Next year, she would like at least second. This year's runner-up, Champaign Centennial's Jennifer Noonan (367.15 points), is a senior. But the gold medalist, junior Carrie Zarse of Rockford Auburn, will be back. Zarse lapped the competition with 457.75 points.

IP reports earnings up

DECATUR — Illinois Power Co. has reported earnings of 94 cents per common share for the third quarter ended Sept. 30. This compares to earnings of 70 cents per common share for the third quarter of 1989.

The increase in earnings is largely the result of rising operating revenues from electric sales, up almost 5 percent in the third quarter. The earnings also reflect a June 6 rate order from the Illinois Commerce Commission that produced additional revenues.

In the first nine months of 1990, Illinois Power earned 57 cents per common share compared to a loss of $4.21 per share for the same period in 1989.

For the 12 months ended Sept. 30, Illinois Power reported earnings of 44 cents per common share, compared to a loss of $4.21 per common share for the same period one year earlier.

The Illinois Power board of directors suspended payment of the common stock dividend effective the third quarter of 1989, citing uncertainties over the issue of placing the remaining costs of Clinton into rates. The dividend remains suspended.

3 attend realtors' conference

Barb Wyatt, Burel Schmisser and Lucinda Schmidt have returned to their Granite City real estate offices after attending a two-day course of advanced education for leaders of the Illinois Association of Realtors.

Wyatt, Schmisser and Schmidt were participating in the Leadership Conference of the Illinois Association of Realtors, which examines specialized areas of real estate leadership.

While in Peoria, Wyatt, president, Schmisser, vice president, and Schmidt, secretary for the Granite City Board of Realtors, participated in activities including special breakout sessions designed especially for members serving as officers.

Speakers for the conference included Gerald N. Perlow, president of the Illinois Association of Realtors; Gary Clayton, executive vice president of the state group; Dorcas Helfant, 1989 president-elect for the National Association of Realtors; Laurie Janik, legal counsel for the National Association of Realtors; and Sheila M. Bethal, national speaker.

The IAR is a voluntary business group with 33,000 members.

Promoted to vice president

Melvin C. Wilmseyer, chairman and chief executive officer of Magna Bank of Madison County, has announced the promotion of Margaret Tarasovich to vice president, mortgage lending.

Tarasovich has been with the bank since 1978, having worked in the Customer Service, New Accounts and Auditing areas. She has been in the Mortgage Lending Department for eight years, having been promoted from loan officer to assistant vice president earlier this year.

Wilmseyer noted that "Magna's Mortgage Lending Department has experienced considerable growth during the last five years, and Mrs. Tarasovich was chosen to head the department following many years of experience and dedicated service to the bank."

Magna Bank of Madison County operates five banking centers including one in Granite City.

Central Banc earnings up

GLEN CARBON — Central Banc System Inc. announced year-to-date earnings as of Sept. 30 of $1,504,000 or $10.09 per share as compared to $1,294,000 or $7.71 per share for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1989.

Chairman E.A. Karandjeff also announced that total assets had reached $305,000,000, the highest quarter-ending total in company history. Total net loans of $170,346,000 were also a company record.

Total deposits reached $277,481,000, a $17,301,000 increase over Sept. 30, 1989. Central Banc System Inc., an Illinois-based bank holding company, owns Central Bank, which has banking centers in Fairview Heights, Granite City, Edwardsville, Glen Carbon and Marine, as well as Farmers and Merchants Bank in Carlinville.
